

Abstract

The present invention concerns the treatment of andropause and related conditions using a combination of an estrogen agonist / antagonist and testosterone.